

Position: Senior Full Stack Developer

Coinweb is on a mission to solve blockchain's biggest problems. Our approach is to combine blockchains to achieve better transactional and computational scaling as well providing developers and projects a larger and continuously adaptive solution space. We have a diverse and international team with offices in London, Bangkok, Kyiv, and Barcelona.

For development of the Coinweb wallet and auxiliary supportive functionality, we are looking for Senior Full Stack developers. For this position, development will be done in Typescript and ReactJS. The Coinweb core is developed in Rust. The candidates will be responsible for further development and improvement of the Coinweb wallet and auxiliary applications in collaboration with the Coinweb core team. Focus will be on frontend development, but it is expected that the candidates will be able to create supportive functions on the backend such as a GraphQL proxy support front end. Devops knowledge is a plus. You build it, you run it.

For these positions we are seeking experienced senior developers with a strong practical background. You need to enjoy working fast and independently, and get to the job done.

We will drive development of hybrid compute systems where computations happen both on server and client, so technologies such as WebAssembly and real-time communications are good to know. The candidates can integrate a WebAssembly module written in Rust, into a frontend blindfolded.

Qualifications:

- Strong experience with Typescript
- Strong experience with ReactJS
- Experience with GraphQL
- Experience with NodeJS
- Ability to create rich user experiences using animated components or WebGL, CSS, and requestAnimationFrame
